

5 Valiant Women Entrepreneurs Who Knocked Down Myths

By SiliconIndia | Monday, 13 May 2013, 09:15 IST | 3 Comments

#1 Neelam Chibber

Founded in 1994, Chibber is the Co-founder for Indus Tree Crafts foundation, which deals in handcraft ethnic products and retails them through Mother Earth, which was launched in 2008.

It raised an undisclosed fundings from Future Ventures and Grassroots Business

Fund. The company targets revenue of ₹30 crore in FY2013.

Chibber says that building a network is very crucial for a business but most of the women stumble here.

"Women do not put in enough effort into networking, Women entrepreneurs say, as more success stories emerge they will have role models to follow, but, everything is available now, women now have no excuses. Those who are inclined should just start up", says Neelam Chibber, 50.